Selected Results from the 2004 LSEP Survey

The use of ultrasound by emergency physicians continues to rise.

Mean levels of satisfaction with EM as a career have remained remarkably stable over the past 10 years.

Retiring Emergency Physicians continue to indicate that the phrase “satisfied with a good career” describes their feeling at retirement (1=Not Descriptive, 5=Very Descriptive).
Although some emergency physicians report a slightly greater percentage of time spent in administrative or consulting activities with more years of EM experience, the majority of EM physicians clearly devote most of their professional time to clinical practice.

!Percentage of Time Spent on Various EM Activities by Years of Experience in EM

At the time of the 2004 LSEP survey, only a small number of LSEP participants (N=141) had signed on to EMCC Online. Those who had accessed the site were asked to give their general impression. Most had a positive impression, and we expect positive reactions will increase as more physicians make use of the site and ABEM continues to monitor and improve the site.

!General Impression of the EMCC Website