

American Board of Emergency Medicine Privacy Statement

In the course of administering the certification, recertification, and continuing certification processes, the American Board of Emergency Medicine (ABEM) must collect and use emergency physicians' personal identification information, and contact information.. In addition, ABEM generates sensitive personal information such as examination scores.

Applicants for certification and certified physicians participating in continuing certification must accept agreements that identify how information they provide will be used.

ABEM has issued the following Privacy Statement to describe its collection, use, and disclosure of such information. In the interests of public health and safety, it is ABEM's objective to promote the submission of candid and complete information by candidates and certified physicians by ensuring the confidentiality of sensitive information to the extent possible within the scope of ABEM's role as a certifying organization.

Personal Information

Personal information is collected and used to identify residents, applicants for certification in Emergency Medicine or a subspecialty, candidates for certification, certified and formerly certified physicians. It is also used to verify a physician's credentials to determine eligibility for certification or to maintain certification. ABEM does not collect personal information from users on pages of its website that do not require a login.

Personal information includes name, last four digits of social security number (or Canadian social insurance number), date of birth, and medical licensure information. If additional personal information is provided to ABEM for any reason, it is not retained beyond one year or the physician's certification date, whichever comes second.

Last four digits of social security and social insurance numbers are not used in the ordinary course of ABEM business except to verify identity. . Last four digits of social security and insurance numbers are not provided to any organizations other than the American Board of Medical Specialties (ABMS) and the Federation of State Medical Licensing Boards.

Limited personal information is used in the process of obtaining independent verification from residency program directors that graduates have successfully completed the training requirements of that program.

ABEM will never use data for research or provide data to researchers that could be used to identify individual residents, training programs, applicants, candidates for certification, or certified or formerly certified physicians.

Contact Information

ABEM collects and maintains contact information for Emergency Medicine residents, applicants, and certified physicians, including email address, phone number, and a preferred mailing address.

Physician contact information is provided to the ABMS, ABEM sponsors, and ABEM's testing vendor (for purposes of identifying examinees at the examination site). In addition, the city and state of a certified or formerly certified physician's current preferred mailing address is provided upon request.

Contact information is collected for physicians who are certified by other ABMS member boards if they are actively seeking certification, recertification, or maintaining certification in a subspecialty that ABEM administers. This information is not maintained or shared with any organizations other than the physician's home board and ABEM's testing vendor (for purposes of identifying examinees at the examination site).

Contact information for other individuals is not maintained except for the email addresses of individuals who write emails to ABEM. These emails may be retained indefinitely, including the email sender's name, email address, and any other information the sender has included in the email. ABEM does not disclose this information.

Financial Information

ABEM uses a third party vendor to process credit card information for individuals who choose to pay for ABEM services via credit card. To protect the security of this information, ABEM complies with current Payment Card Industry Data Security Standards (PCI DSS). These standards include but are not limited to maintenance of a secure network architecture, protection of data during transmission across the network and during storage, secure systems and applications, strong access control measures, restricted physical access to credit card information, regular monitoring and testing of networks, security systems, and processes.

Credit card information received through the mail or over the phone is limited and is treated as confidential, is stored in secure systems, and any paper copies are destroyed.

ABEM-generated Information

ABEM generates information about residents, candidates for certification in Emergency Medicine or a subspecialty that ABEM co-sponsors, and certified or formerly certified physicians attempting to regain certification. This information includes application status, certification status, examination status and scores, participation in LLSA CME activities, voluntary post-examination survey information, and ABEM continuing certification participation information.

LLSA CME information, including the physician's name, date of birth, credit earned, and verification that the physician passed the LLSA test will be communicated to the CME provider the physician selected when registering for the CME activity.

Upon request, ABEM will disclose a certified physician's certification dates and certification number, ABEM continuing certification participation status, and clinical activity status.

All other ABEM-generated information is confidential and is disclosed only as follows:

- Upon written request from a candidate for certification, his/her status in the certification process will be disclosed. A third party can receive this information from ABEM with a written request, a status verification fee, and a signed release from the candidate.

- A resident's individual in-training examination results are disclosed to the residency program in which the resident is enrolled at the time the results are published. A physician's certification examination results are disclosed to that physician.
- A physician's certification examination pass-fail results are disclosed to the residency program from which the physician graduated, and aggregated information is provided to the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME) Residency Review Committee for Emergency Medicine.
- Information is provided for research purposes as long as it does not identify individuals.

Computer Use Information

ABEM collects the following information about individuals who use the portion of the website for which a user ID and password is needed: IP address, user identification number (a unique, ABEM-assigned number), and browser information. This information is secure and confidential. It is used only by ABEM's information systems staff for purposes of systems maintenance and performance enhancement.

The ABEM website places temporary cookies in the user's browser during use of the website. These cookies are automatically deleted when the user's browser is closed or upon logout.

Some information is sent to certified physicians and candidates for certification via mass email, in which case ABEM may track whether the email was received.

This website contains links to other websites. ABEM has no control over and is not responsible for the privacy policies or content of such sites.

Rights Over Physician Information

You may have certain rights relating to your personal data under local data protection laws. For example:

European Economic Area

Access. You can ask ABEM to provide you with a copy of your personal data.

Erasure. You can ask ABEM to erase your personal data if certain conditions are met. We are not required to comply with your request to erase your personal data if the processing of your personal data is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation or for the establishment, exercise, or defense of legal claims.

Objection. You can object to any processing of your personal data. Once you have objected, we have an opportunity to demonstrate that we have compelling legitimate interests which override your rights and freedoms.

Portability. You can ask ABEM to provide your personal data to you in a structured, commonly used, machine-readable format, or you can ask to have it 'ported' directly to another data controller, but only where our processing is based on your consent and the processing is carried out by automated means.

Rectification. You can correct your information by signing in to your Personal Portal or ask ABEM to correct information; we may verify the accuracy of the data before rectifying it.

Restriction. You can ask ABEM to restrict (i.e., keep but not use) your personal data.

Exercise of Rights. To exercise your rights please contact ABEM using the contact details provided under the "Contact Information" heading.

Contact Information

If you have any questions regarding this Privacy Statement, please contact ABEM at 517.332.4800.

Last revised: January 28, 2020
(42002)